Finding a School That Is Right for You — Your Road Map to Success

The school that is right for you varies depending on the career you are pursuing. To help you meet your career goals, find out which schools in your state offer the license or credential you need. Asking the right questions early can ensure the time and work you put into your education pays off.
Accreditation is public recognition awarded to a college, university, institution and its programs indicating it has met acceptable levels of educational quality.

Before choosing a school, research how accreditation can affect your future education and career endeavors.
Building An Education Foundation

The accreditation database is brought to you by the U.S. Department of Education’s Office of Postsecondary Education (OPE). The database is provided as a public service without warranty of any kind. The database does not constitute an endorsement by the U.S. Department of Education of any of the educational institutions or programs.

The Database of Postsecondary Institutions and Programs

The Database of Accredited Postsecondary Institutions and Programs contains information reported to the U.S. Department of Education directly by recognized accrediting agencies and state approval agencies. The database reflects additional information as it is received from recognized accrediting agencies and state approval agencies. This reported information is not audited. The U.S. Department of Education cannot, therefore, guarantee that the information contained in the database is accurate, current, or complete. For the most accurate and current information, contact the appropriate agency.
